The President Se^Z

Jeff Pleiter, President

Hello everyone, it has been a busy time and we spent a lot of time on planning for a potential Midwest Z Heritage Show in September this year. However, in the end, the consensus of the committee is that it was more prudent to postpone the Midwest Z Heritage Show again to next year.

Northwest Indiana Drive. Carl Kush took the lead in planning an event in Northwest Indiana. Originally scheduled for July 10, it was postponed due to weather concerns to July 24. So on a warm day we had about 16 people who met at the Kush's house for a light (second) breakfast before leaving for a scenic drive that ended at the La Porte Historical Society Museum. The museum was larger than I expected and contained the Kesling Car collection, as well as many historical exhibits related to La Porte County. A very knowledgeable staff person gave us a tour, of the highlights of the museum and the history of many famous people from La Porte. The most surprising information was about a woman named Belle Gunness. She was apparently a serial killer who lured single men to her farm to be partners on the farm, but they all mysteriously disappeared, just like her husbands and foster children. Eventually once the brother of one of the victims started investigating, she realized the jig was up. The farm mysteriously burned down and she was never seen again. The story was a world sensation at the time. The staff person had spent a significant amount of time researching it and he created a documentary, which is available on DVD. It is quite a story. The museum website is <https://laportecountyhistory.org> Following the museum tour, we drove to Michigan City for a waterside lunch and then spent some time at the Friendship Botanic Gardens. While it was a hot day, it was cooler than on the west side of the Lake and we finished before seeing any storms. On the drive home, Allie and I drove through about 15 minutes of heavy rain just before we got home. Apparently, we avoided the worst of the storms that day. Thanks to the Kush's for taking the lead on organizing this event, and the Keene's assistance. Carl promised a picture and video show, at the annual B-day event.
